

Your life support action checklist

Are you reliant on home-based life support equipment?

Careful planning to prepare for power outages could save your life in the case of an emergency. Complete our checklist below to make your life support action plan today.

Get started

- Are you registered with your network and your energy provider as a life support customer? Are your details up-to-date?
- Can you get out of your home if there is no electricity? Make sure you know how to open your doors and gates manually if there's no power.
- Are your medical supplies fully stocked and secure?

In an emergency

Do you have a plan for transporting your medical equipment if necessary?

Gather your equipment

Make sure you have:

- A torch and battery-powered radio in an easily accessible place
- A charged backup battery for your equipment. When did you last check the battery was charged?
- Reserve oxygen cylinders. Are they filled and working?
- An uninterruptible power supply (UPS) for temporary battery backup power.
- Your life support equipment plugged into a surge protector for when the power returns.
- Your keys handy. Ensure you have a clear, obstacle-free pathway to exit your home.

Keep in contact

- Have a phone or mobile that will work when the power is out.
- Ask a neighbour to check on you during a power outage.
- Discuss emergency arrangements for power outages with your medical practitioner or carer.

Write down the following emergency numbers:

Dr _____

Hospital _____

Neighbour _____

Family member _____

Energy network provider _____

Check your mobile for power outage updates and alerts from your network provider.

Essential Energy: 13 20 80
Ausgrid: 13 13 88
Endeavour Energy: 13 10 03

In 2021 EWON initiated a change to the National Energy Retail Rules making it easier for customers reliant on life support equipment to change retailer and access the best energy deals.

Help for life support customers

Retailers or distributors must give anyone registered as a life support customer at least 4 business days notice of any planned outage.

If you or someone in your household relies on life support equipment, you may be eligible for rebates and other state or federal assistance.

- NSW Government Life Support Rebate to help pay your electricity bills
- Commonwealth Government Essential Medical Equipment Payment, a yearly payment to help with the energy costs of running medical equipment or medically required heating or cooling

Make a complaint or enquiry

If you have a problem with your energy service or are struggling to pay your bill, contact your provider first. If you're not happy with their response, get in touch with EWON.
